Board approves GCESC contract

By Diane Chiddister

At its July 8 meeting, the Yellow Springs Board of Education approved the renewal of a contract with the Greene County Educational Services Center, or GCESC, for special education services for the coming school year, although most board members expressed a reluctance to do so, given the high price tag.

"I'm not happy spending this much money, but we're late in the year," said board member Angela Wright. "But we can't go this route next year. We have to investigate other options."

Interim Superintendent Tony Armocida recommended that the board approve the contract due to the legalities around the needs of special ed students. The state requires that the Individual Education Plans, or IEPs, of special ed students be in place when the school year begins, and changing contracts this late in the year would make it difficult to meet that require-

"If you delay on this, it will put the district in jeopardy" and open to legal challenges, he said.

Yellow Springs has about 115 students with IEPs.

The board voted 3-1 to approve the contract, which costs $478,000 for the year for services that include contracted teachers to work with emotionally disturbed, learning disabled and physically and mentally handicapped students. The vote was 3-1 for the contract, with Sean Creighton, Aida Merhemic and Wright voting for it and Benji Maruyama voting against. Richard Lapedes was not at the meeting.

While Armocida recommended that the board approve the contract, which is one of the district budget's most expensive items, he expressed his own ambivalence regarding the cost, but ultimately came down in favor of renewing the contract due to the difficulty in finding replacement services so close to the start of the school year. In a recent audit, the Yellow Springs district was found to spend about 90 percent above the recommended state minimum on special ed, while peer districts spent an average of 50 percent above the state minimum.

The GCESC contract is one of the items the board has discussed in its recent conversations regarding the need to cut district expenses due to a deficit in this year's budget, and expected growing deficits. At the meeting, District Treasurer Dawn Weller stated that the 2009-2010 deficit ended up at $432,810, less than the expected amount of between $500,00 and $600,000. The deficit has been projected to reach $900,000 next year if there are no spending cuts.

In explaining his "no" vote, Maruyama stated that he feels the board is "sending the wrong message" to the teachers union, which is being asked to reopen negotiations on their contracts for a possible wage freeze.

"Our message is unbalanced and we need to be careful," he said.

Armocida suggested that in the coming year the board investigate comparable services being offered by other county agencies, in hopes of reducing the cost. A comparison of the quality of the programs, not just the costs, also needs to be made, according to Creighton.

In other business concerning district financial concerns, Creighton reported that a June meeting between board mem-

There is water on Mars...

Looking a little bit like waterlogged Martians, Yellow Springs residents, from left, Elijah and Judah Williams and Liam Cooney, splashed around in the shallow end at Gaunt Park this month, seeking a little relief from the heat. It was so hot at the beginning of the month that the weekend's 80 degree days sounded cool. But temperatures are expected to climb back up to 94 degrees this week with a humidity factor that makes it feel like 101. In that kind of heat, the only thing to do is get back in the water.

Some tax drop, but hope for future

By Diane Chiddister

The income tax decline in the Yellow Springs school budget has been news in recent weeks, and Village government has also seen a downturn in income tax in the past two years. However, the Village tax loss is significantly less than that of the school district, and Village Manager Mark Cundiff sees reason to believe that the worst is over.

"I'm cautiously optimistic," Cundiff said in an interview last week. "There are a lot of signs that point toward optimisim."

Hopeful signs include the return of Antioch College, expansion of YSI, the largest local employer, and the beginning of a return on efforts to recruit and retain business by Sarah Wildman, the new Village economic sustainability coordinator, according to Cundiff.

"It's amazing how much more proactive we can be with her devoted to this," he said, describing Wildman as highly energetic.

But these efforts will take time, and the Village still anticipates some continuing income tax decline in 2010. The diminished revenues mean that some capital projects may be postponed, and that it's been necessary to eat into the reserve fund in the Village general fund budget, according to Village Finance Director Sharon Potter. Both Potter and Cundiff believe that because this year's income tax drop is less than last year's, the worst is over in the local economy.

"I'm assuming that the downturn has leveled off, and businesses don't seem to be closing," Potter said. "But we don't expect an increase in revenue until next year."

Potter will present the Village tax budget for 2010-2011 at the upcoming July 19 Council meeting. The tax budget is an estimation of Village revenues and expenses for the coming year.

A smaller drop this year

Village income tax differs from the school district income tax in that the Village receives withholding tax from the wages of all who are employed in Yellow Springs, whether they live in the village or not, while the schools receive income tax on both earned and unearned income of villagers regardless of whether they work in town. The Village income tax provides the largest part of the Village revenue stream, with the taxes providing more than 50 percent of the $2.1 million general fund budget that funds most Village services. The Village utility funds — water, sewer and electricity — are self-supporting through fees.

In the first six months of 2010, the Village has seen a 4.6 percent, or about $30,000, drop in income tax on both wages and net profits of local businesses, compared to the 23 percent drop in the school income tax for the 2009-2010 school year. The school tax's larger drop came mainly from decreased capital gains, and can be linked to the 2008 stock market volatility.

The Village income tax, being a wage tax, reflects the health of local businesses, and this year's drop of 4.6 percent is less than last year's drop of about 12 percent. That larger 2009 loss could be linked to the 2008 closing of Antioch College and downsizing at the Antioch Company, according to

According to figures from the Regional Income Tax Agency, or RITA, the Village for the first six months of 2010 had received $602,952 from income taxes compared to $632,175 in the same period last year.

The RITA report shows drops in distributions from most large local contributors, including YSI Incorporated, for both withholding taxes for employees and net profits. The YSI tax on net profits dropped to $7,230 so far this year compared to $36,591 last year, and YSI withholding taxes dropped $11,557 in the first six months of

However, according to YSI President Rick Omlor, those drops do not reflect a decline in the company's profits or number of employees, but are rather linked to a variety of factors including timing of payments.

"The bottom line is our tax payments, both payroll and income, have continued to trend upward, and we see that trend continuing in 2010," Omlor wrote in an e-mail.

In recent months, YSI was one of only six businesses statewide to receive a Third Frontier grant. In collaboration with Riehl Engineering and the University of Cincinnati, YSI received a $1.1 million grant to develop an advanced sensor for monitoring nitrate levels in natural waters, a new project that will lead to some job creation, Omlor has said.

According to the RITA information, withholding income tax from the Antioch Company was down about $2,000 in 2010 over 2009, and that year's TAC revenues had been significantly down from the year before, as the company continued to downsize its Yellow Springs operations after moving most of the business to St. Cloud, Minn.

Most recently, the company let go of five employees in May 2010 due to new machinery that streamlined operations, according to Creative Memories Human Resources Director Laurie Bryant, who is located in Yellow Springs. The company currently employs 40 workers in its Yellow Springs plant, mainly manufacturing the paper materials for Creative Memories, and does not anticipate any more layoffs, Bryant said.

Other drops in 2010 income tax came from Vernay Laboratories, from $19,105 in June 2009 to $14,590 in June 2010; from Wright

Rabbit Run Farm house to burn

By Lauren Heaton

Three months after Vernay Laboratories purchased Rabbit Run Farm on Dayton Street, the company has decided to raze the eight-room farmhouse on the property. The controlled burn is scheduled for Saturday, July 17, and will be performed as a training operation for the Miami Township Fire-Rescue, with an open invitation to Sugarcreek Township and Cedarville departments.

In an interview on Monday, Vernay President Ed Urquhart stated that the company was concerned about the safety issues that a vacant building poses to the community and felt it was better to take it down than let it fall apart. Vernay purchased the seven-acre property from Suzanne Patterson in February, after Home, Inc. passed on an option to buy it for affordable housing last winter. Vernay obtained the property to continue the extended remediation of toxic contaminants that have been found in the aquifer below Rabbit Run Farm, which sits directly east of its former Dayton Street production plant.

Rabbit Run is one of the last working farms in the village. The west end of Dayton Street remained undeveloped until after 1855, when Antioch College was established, according to college archivist Scott Sanders. And the farmhouse and barn may have been built around the time that Pat Perry's family home was built next door in 1875, she said this week. The structures were there in 1942 when Lester and Frances Sidenstick bought the then-11-acre farm, according to their daughter Esther Pierson. She remembers helping to raise and slaughter hogs and cattle in the barn while Frances operated HomeAcres Garden Center on the lot just to the north. Villager Al Schlueter bought the farm in 1973 and ran it as a vegetable and chicken farm with a fruit orchard, until Patterson, Laura Taylor and Connie Collett bought it in 1985. Patterson continued until this year to raise vegetables there for local consumption.

The fire department is scheduled to begin the controlled burn at 9:30 a.m., starting with a series of training exercises involving lighting and extinguishing small fires inside the house, according to Fire Chief Colin Altman. Altman expects that the entire structure will be burned down in the afternoon, and will likely take about two hours to complete. The department plans to burn just the residential home, and not the barn that sits behind it.

The fire department is scheduled to obtain a permit to burn from the Regional Air Pollution Control Agency of the Ohio EPA this week, Altman said The department had asbestos and other potentially toxic materials such as plastics and carpeting removed from the building this month, and Altman perceives no other safety hazards that would impede the exercise. The event will create smoke in the area, but not more than the many other practice burns the fire department has engaged in over the past several years, including burning Antioch's Norment Hall on East Whiteman Street and a home on the corner of Dayton and Stafford Streets.

On Tuesday the department notified the neighbors of the burn event. And there will be an area cordoned off for public viewing

"This is a fantastic opportunity for training for our fire fighters," Altman said, referring especially to the newer volunteers who have never trained with a house fire that can climb up to 1300-1400 degrees. "That's why these things are so important to us," he said.

Benjamin G. Stratton, a 2000 graduate of YSHS, graduated cum laude in the top 25 percent of his class with pro bono legal honors from Capital University Law School in Columbus on May 23. He was also a member of the Order of Curia. Attending graduation were Ben's wife Anita (Allen) Stratton, parents David Stratton and Toni Laricchiuta, brother Drew, sister-in-law Jane Allen, sister Amy, niece Alexis, nephew Derek Jr., Derek McDaniel, Jennifer Jackson and Andrew Ferguson. Ben will take the Ohio bar exam and intends to practice civil law.

Matt Morgan and Sean Devine of Precarious Egg Productions, who both grew up in Yellow Springs, recently premiered the documentary film Jornaleros, which documents the lives and creative work of five Portland, Ore. day laborers through music, poetry and art. The premiere, held at the Clinton Street Theater in Portland, drew a sellout crowd and served as a fundraiser for Voz, a workers' rights education program in Portland. Matt and his partner, Karla, and daughter, Elizabeth, as well as Sean and his wife, Cory Hammond, currently live in Portland and may be reached at www.precariousegg.com.

Eve Marie GunderKline graduated from Wheelock College in Boston with a bachelors degree in social work. During her four years at college, Eve earned the Coach's Award for the swim team, received the Rising Star award for exceptional leadership, was chosen as a resident assistant for a floor of 50 girls and received the Spark Award for her work with underprivileged children in the Jumpstart program, a division of Americorps. She spent a semester in Buenos Aires living with a family, taking classes and traveling. Her senior practicum took place at LaAlianza Hispana, where she worked as a case manager for low-income pregnant mothers. Eve will be attending graduate school in Chicago in the fall to obtain a masters degree in social work with a concentration on children and families. Her proud family includes her mom Molly, her dad Keith, sister Jeanna, brothers Jacob and Brock and brother-in-law Mark.

Jess McDonald and Joe Lebold announce the birth of their son, Coban Jacob Lebold, on June 22 in Morgantown, W.Va. The happy grandparents are Jack and Jennie Lebold of Yellow Springs.

A new look at an American triumph

Barack Obama was 4 years old when the civil rights demonstration known as Bloody Sunday took place on March 7, 1964. More than 600 blacks and civil rights workers had set off on a peaceful march in Selma, Ala., seeking voting rights for African Americans. Leading the march was John Lewis, then a young civil rights activist and now a Congressman from Georgia. Years later, Lewis described his experience:

There was no singing, no shouting — just the sound of scuffling feet. There was something holy about it, as if we were walking down a sacred path. It reminded me of Gandhi's march to the sea. Dr. King used to say there is nothing more powerful than the rhythm of marching feet, and that was what this was, the marching feet of a determined people. That was the only sound you could hear.

At the crest of a bridge at the edge of town, the group suddenly encountered a sea of state troopers in gas masks, armed with whips and nightsticks. The troopers ordered the marchers to disperse. When the marchers refused to do so but instead knelt to pray, the troopers charged, spraying tear gas and beating the marchers with sticks. Lewis suffered a fractured skull.

The violence appeared on American TV screens that night, when ABC News broke into its Sunday night movie with a 15-minute special report.

"For millions of Americans, the sight of peaceful protesters being clubbed and gassed in Selma disturbed the foundations of American indifference no less than Gandhi inspired Indians and unnerved the British," writes New Yorker Editor David Remnick in his new book, The Bridge.

Upset by the spectacle, a few days later President Lyndon Johnson delivered to Congress "the most ringing endorsement of civil rights ever by a sitting President," according to Remnick, an endorsement followed by sweeping civil rights legislation.

And 45 years later, Barack Obama became the nation's first African-American president.

The Bridge: the Life and Rise of Barack Obama, is a powerful and moving look through a racial lens at Obama's improbable story. Beginning with the Selma march and ending at the Obama inauguration, the book includes new and fascinating information about not only Obama but also those who laid the groundwork for his election, including civil rights heroes like Lewis along with unknowns like the African-American slaves who built the White House. It examines Obama's profound awareness of his place in the greater story of human rights. When on Inauguration Day John Lewis asked Obama for an autograph to honor the historic occasion, Obama wrote, "Because of you, John. Barack Obama.

In the year and a half since that day, the country has faced one seemingly insurmountable challenge after another: the economic crisis, growing political polarization, the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, joblessness and an ever-widening oil spill, to name a few. The Obama administration sometimes seems overwhelmed by its task, and the country seems increasingly weary and pessimistic.

But this book made me hopeful. It's a great read. It enhanced my admiration for Obama and his remarkable intellectual and personal gifts. Most of all, the book reminds me of this country's astonishing journey, in just four decades, from state-sanctioned violence against blacks to the election of an African-American president. It also illuminates the many, many acts of courage, faith and heart that led to that victory.

Some of those with courage were Antioch College students who traveled to the South in 1964 for Freedom Summer, to help register African-American voters and start Freedom Schools. This month and next at the college, villagers can attend events that bring that time back to life, including documentary films on the civil rights movement and tonight, July 15, the reading of letters from students who joined Freedom Summer. This event takes place at 7:30 in Herndon Gallery.

It's a proud legacy for Antioch College. On the day that Barack Obama was inaugurated, John Lewis, now a longtime U.S. Congressman, said to author Remnick, "Barack Obama is what comes at the end of that bridge in Selma."

Small town trust

I wanted to express my gratitude to the town and to the Yellow Springs police force for returning a lost camera to me over the Fourth of July weekend. I was in Yellow Springs for my 20th high school class reunion, and misplaced my camera somewhere in Gaunt Park during the fireworks. It had pictures of people I hadn't seen in decades, and I was quite disappointed when I realized it was missing. I told my friend that I wasn't worried, though — "this is Yellow Springs, and it will turn up somehow." Before I had a chance to go down to the police headquarters and see if it had been found, they had looked through the pictures, found one of my friends, confirmed my identity and dropped it off at my Mom's house. My faith in the people of this lovely town was re-confirmed — it truly never crossed my mind that it had been "stolen" and I was sure I would be reunited with it eventually. I didn't expect it to be returned so quickly, though.

Thank you again for your detective work, and for being the kind of town where the police recognize people who aren't on a most-wanted list.

Sea Dog donations

We are writing this letter for two reasons. First, we want to thank the people of Yellow Springs for their generosity in donating to the Sea Dogs fundraiser vard sale. We have a tremendous amount of merchandise. We also want to thank Jonathan Brown for his use of the Union Schoolhouse property and space and the GEC for providing storage

Second, when the sale is over this Saturday at 3 p.m., we are sure to have leftovers. We would like to offer those to any organization which will be having a yard sale fundraiser or can use them to help the residents of Yellow Springs. We see no sense in driving to another community to donate items when surely there are folks here in Yellow Springs who can use them. Please contact us at 545-4729 if you are interested. Thank you so much.

Impressed by YSKP

If the weather or something else kept you away, you missed the opening weekend of this thoughtful new production from YSKP. But be heartened! There is still another weekend to make it: Thursday-Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the amphitheater on Corry Street. How amazing to see these 20 young people perform such a complex play, and also be puppeteers! The visuals, the music, complex harmonies, talents of our young people — all brought forth through the guidance of our professional artists — who have all been working in this dastardly summer heat these past four weeks. The greatest compliment or gift you could give to our young people and our artists is to come see the show this weekend! You will be impressed and, as always, moved.

A YELLOW SPRINGS ALMANACK BY BILL FELKER

At the turn of summer's tide, there can be quickening of the psychic pulse, panic that it's now too late, that all the promises of June are still to be fulfilled, that there will never be sufficient time, never be time enough for all our plans and hopes. That awareness now spurs a different chemistry in our brains, one that points to adaptation instead of fulfillment; we batten down our souls, make ready for the test of the harvest, the test of the reaping what we have sown, the challenges of autumn and the cold to come.

ASTRONOMICAL

The crescent Lily Moon waxes throughout the period, entering its second quarter at 5:11 a.m. on July 18. Rising in the morning and setting in the middle of the night, this moon moves overhead in the evenings, opening all the remaining lilies in Yellow Springs.

Before midnight, the boxy constellation of Libra lies in the southwest (just behind Virgo and Saturn). Due south, the serpentine shape of Scorpio hosts bright Antares, and the teapot-shape of Sagittarius follows in the southeast. In the northeast, autumn's Great Square is rising, and Cepheus rests east of the North Star. On the western side of Polaris, the Big Dipper stands between Cepheus and Leo.

WANING MIDDLE SUMMER

Following the messages of the moon and stars, blackberries redden, elderberries darken, the first katydids and night crickets sing, the early morning birds become quiet, and restless geese fly back and forth between farm ponds.

Bouncing bets, St. John's wort, teasel, milkweed, late violet bergamot, grayheaded coneflowers, thin-leaved coneflowers, showy coneflowers, white vervain, wild lettuce, heliopsis, germander, skullcap, great Indian plantain, blue vervain, wingstem, bull thistle, black-eyed Susans and small-flowered agrimony still hold the center of Middle Summer's wide plateau.

Then the longest days of the Yellow Springs year shorten more quickly. Soft violet resurrection lilies begin their season as most other garden lilies disappear. Thistledown unravels more dramatically. Seed pods form on trumpet creepers. Catalpa beans are fat and long. Ragweed heads up as honewort and wood nettle, mallow and tall meadow rue go to seed. Early cottonwoods are weathering. Patches of bright yellow appear on the weaker ash and buckeye and white mulberry and locust trees.

Black walnut leaves start to fall. Early pods of the touch-me-not burst at the slightest movement. Meadowlarks begin migration. Fogs appear in the hollows before dawn. Grapes and pokeweed berries darken. The opening of white snakeroot, Joe Pye weed, blue dayflowers and tall coneflowers signals the waning of the Lily Moon. There is a scent of August in the morning air, the smell of spent flowers and leaves.

Tanka—

Finding love at workshop

You never know what is going to happen at the Antioch Writers' Workshop. You might learn a new verse technique that will lead to a next book. You may hear or read a type of fiction that will change the direction of your writing forever. You may learn that those precious lines you have cherished since high school are not as earth-rattlingly rare as you had believed. A good teacher may be able to make suggestions that will change both your work and your life. You might meet an editor who really, really wants to see more of your work. Maybe you will meet a writer who has a friend of a friend who publishes a journal that is looking for essays on your current topic. You may learn that finding a publisher of books is getting harder and that all that stuff about online publishing and self-publishing and marketing doesn't look so bad.

But other things can happen too. Twenty years ago I went into the AWW poetry class with the intention of becoming a better translator of Japanese poetry. Still, I had a few original poems in my bag as well. I sat down with the dozen or so others and we began to read our poems. My eyes went immediately to the fun lady with a snazzy haircut who wrote

Enjoy the show!

I have a watercolor exhibit hanging in The Winds Cafe through Sunday, July 25. To help support the creative efforts of YSKP, I will give 50 percent of the next painting purchased to YSKP. This year's production, The Conference of the Birds, truly allows each of the cast to showcase their abilities. The music, the set, the costumes, the song and dance, the performers; all are mesmerizing. Please come enjoy the show July 15-18 at the Antioch Amphitheater at 7:30 p.m.

—Libby Rudolf

delightful poems. We later talked over coffee. I learned that she, too, was living in Ohio, not all that far away. One night, after the evening session, she just happened to lose her car keys and, of course, needed a ride. Next, she and a friend hinted that they would really love a tour of the famed Oregon District of Dayton. Of course, I offered to guide them. After the workshop, it was poetry exchanges with that lady with the unusual name of Jonatha. Then, after many phone calls and camping trips, we were married a year later in a quiet outdoor ceremony in a state park. We still exchange poems on our anniversaries.

Jonatha and I do publish our work, sometimes coauthored, but have moved more and more into the wonderful world of storytelling. The skills we learned at the AWW have helped us so much in terms of structure and the plotting of our told tales. We may not have become rich and famous because of the workshop experience, but we are truly living "happily ever after." You never know what will happen at that famed Antioch event.

The Japanese tanka form of poetry has been used for over a thousand years to express love, both by men and women. With all the writers now wandering around Yellow Springs, I am reminded of a poem by Ono no Komachi, a ninth century woman who is considered the most "passionate" of all the ancient poets:

> Hito ni awamu tsuki no naki yo wa omoiokite mune hashri hi ni kokoro yakeori

Longing to meet him on this night of no moonlight I wake in desire; My breast leaps forth in flames, my heart consumed by fire. -Harold Wright

Board approves special ed contract

bers Lapedes and himself, administrators Armocida and Weller, and representatives from the teachers and staff unions had produced an agreement to work collaboratively on addressing the budget crunch. The meeting followed a letter that Creighton wrote for the board requesting that the unions agree to re-open negotiations with the possibility of freezing salaries.

"The unions are working to educate their members on the severity of the situation," Creighton said, stating that in August the unions will vote on whether to re-open the negotiations.

In other board business:

• Board members expressed their gratitude to Armocida, who was leaving his interim position at the end of the week. Armocida stepped in last August after the sudden departure of former Superintendent Norm Glismann. He had been retired for several years after serving as the Yellow Springs superintendent for 10 years.

"We've known each other many years," said Wright. "We could always depend on vou to come through."

Armocida thanked the board for its support and said, "As I walk out of here, you're dealing with the future rather than clearing up the past. You have a really good administrative team."

In the past few months, the district has hired a new superintendent, treasurer and principals of both Yellow Springs High School/McKinney and Mills Lawn.

The board approved new superintendent Mario Basora as interim superintendent from July 12 to July 31. Basora's official contract begins on Aug. 1. The board also approved a contract that allows Armocida to provide mentoring to Basora as needed up to 30 hours, at $70 per hour.

• The board is sponsoring "meet and greets" for Basora and his family, with six to 10 scheduled so far, according to Merhemic. She asked that villagers interested in hosting an event contact her.

• The board approved several non-district employees as coaches for fall sports, "to be paid at a rate existing at the completion of the season, contingent upon completing all ORC and ODE employment requirements." The board approved contracts for Clayton Brady, eighth-grade volleyball coach; Adrian Cosby, assistant girls soccer coach; Jim Hardman, head boys soccer coach; Christine Linkhart, reserve volleyball coach; Mike Reichert, golf coach; Vince Peters, cross country coach; Ben Van Ausdal, assistant boys soccer coach; Angelo Caliguiri, head girls soccer coach; Craig McCann, head football coach, and Neal Perry, assistant football coach. Coaches approved on a volunteer basis were Judy Parker, seventh-grade vollevball coach; Roberta Perry, site manager; Jessica Zagory, cross country coach; and Isabelle Dierauer, cross country coach.

The hiring of coaches for fall sports had sparked concern at a recent board Committee of the Whole meeting from community members who questioned why coaches were being hired when non-athletic co-curriculars were scheduled to be cut from the budget as a cost-cutting measure. At the earlier meeting, board members said they would look closely at co-curricular cuts. The July 8 co-curricular contracts were those necessary for fall sports to begin on time, according to Armocida.

• The board approved the hiring of substitute teachers John Gill, Mark Franks, Susan Hyde, Pegeen Laughlin, Tiffany Pikas, Shirley Martin, Kathy Robertson, Barbara Nooks, Lillian Slaughter and Rebecca Traeger, at $80 per day. The board approved substitute aides Pegeen Laughlin, Shirley Martin and Susan Hyde at $10 per hour, and Robert Libecap as substitute bus driver at $13.43 per hour.

• Creighton announced that the board will meet with the Yellow Springs Village Council on Thursday, Aug. 26, in order to discuss the two groups' common goal of bringing new young families to Yellow

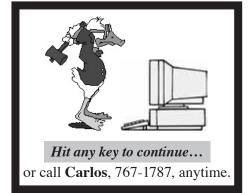

• The board's next regular meeting is Thursday, Aug. 12.

State Physicians, which closed its clinic in Yellow Springs last year, so that the Village lost the clinic's almost $4,000 in withholding tax; and the College Revival Fund, which provided $11,435 in withholding income tax from funding Nonstop in 2009 and only $688 in 2010 since the alumni are no longer funding the venture due to the re-opening of Antioch College.

Some of the income tax declines were made up in the first part of 2010 by increases from other tax contributors, mainly from individuals and some smaller Yellow Springs businesses, including Ertel Publishing and Rita Caz Jewelry Studio, along with several companies providing contracted help for local companies or temporary help for local Village projects.

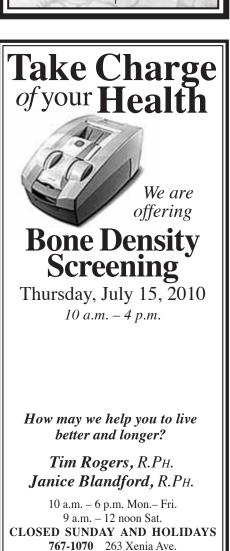

Feeling positive about future

The most significant good economic news in the village is the rebirth of Antioch College, according to Cundiff. The college, which re-opened in September 2009 and currently has about 30 employees, expects to expand as it heads toward welcoming its first group of new students in the fall

"The college coming back is nothing but positive," Cundiff said. "It's not a magic pill that will solve everything, but it will go a long way.'

The growing college will contribute withholding income taxes to the Village — so far in 2010, the Village has not received income tax from the revived college — and a growing student body will help to strengthen downtown businesses, according to Cundiff, who also sees many potential "spin-offs" from college creative and intellectual efforts.

A college town is also attractive for retirement communities, and with the amount of unused land on the Antioch College campus, "we would be a good market for something like that, with a compact and walkable downtown," he said.

Cundiff is also exploring opportunities for the village to link up with the supply chain of alternative energy production, possibly attracting manufacturers of some of the "widgets" that go into solar or wind energy, he said, stating that he recently attended an Ohio Department of Development presentation on the topic.

Another area that seems a good fit for the village is "anything that can use an agricultural product," such as organic foods, according to Cundiff, who said a microbrewery is currently looking to launch in Wildman has on deck some interesting possibilities that he could not be specific about at this point, Cundiff said, and she's also working to help strengthen current local businesses.

While he's cautious, Cundiff said that in general he believes the Village is doing better than most small municipalities, and that the future looks promising.

"I still have my fingers crossed that things are getting better," he said.

- Wood artist Tom Hawley will give a demonstration on fine wood finishes with less toxic products and techniques on Sunday, July 18, 1-2:30 p.m. at Hawley Clockworks in Millworks. The demonstration, which costs $10, is for ages 16 and up.
- In "The Self That Moves" workshop, led by Dimi Reber, participants will explore Laban's approach to movement through the elements of time, space, weight and energy flow. The workshop, which costs $30 and is for adults only, will be held on Sunday, July 18, 1-3:30 p.m. at the Bryan Center.

ART AROUND TOWN

- The Glen Helen Atrium Gallery is showing "The Earth Responds — Oil Paintings by Jennifer Haack," July 20-August 28. Haack's paintings address the issues of soil erosion, invasive species and extinction using color and abstract forms. Show hours are 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday-Friday, and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Admission is free. The public is invited to meet the artist at the opening reception on Sunday, August 1, 2–4 p.m.
- Village Artisans will host "Art on the Lawn," a juried arts festival, on Saturday, August 14, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. at Mills Lawn. The public is invited to enjoy and purchase the work of many artists from all over Ohio and nearby states. Food and drink will be available "en plein air" under the shade trees of Mills Lawn.
- Village Artisans is thinking small with its second annual "Size Does Matter" show. For all of July, artist trading cards measuring 2.5 by 3.5 inches will adorn the Village Artisans lobby. The cards have been created by a variety of artists from near and far. By nature, the cards are not for sale, but may only be traded between their creators.

Trading of the cards will take place July 31,

- Sharon Mohler's work, "You Can Only Play the Hand You're Dealt," is currently being exhibited in the window of Eco-Mental.
- Gallery hours for "Life Paintings by Buck Truitt" are July 16, 6-9 p.m. during Third Friday Fling and Saturdays, July 24 and 31, 1–4 p.m. The show, on display at the ArtSpace, displays paintings that derive from the artist's life experience. For more information, contact the artist at valbkyle@yahoo.com or 532-4106.
- "Watercolors at The Winds," an exhibit by Libby Rudolf, will be displayed at the Winds Cafe through July 25. Rudolf's work is inspired by Glen Helen, as well as other places of natural beauty.
- The Glen Helen Association, in conjunction with its 50th anniversary celebration, is sponsoring a juried invitational art exhibit and sale, which runs through July 16 in the Glen Helen Building. For further information, contact Joan Horn at 767-7971 or joanhorn@att.net or Linda Par-

Make art for peace

Community children are invited to submit artwork to the 13th annual Peace Pals International Exhibition and Awards. Peace Pals is a program of the World Peace Prayer Society, which promotes the message "may peace prevail on Earth." Kids between the ages of 5 and 19 are encouraged to create an original work of art for submission by July 30. See 'Hamlet' free

With the economy on the mend, many organizations have cut back on festivals and special events in Dayton. Bucking this trend, a group of local artists, musicians and actors will collaborate this summer to provide Free Shakespeare!, a presentation that includes free nights of art, music and a performance of Hamlet.

Free Shakespeare! will come to Yellow Springs' Antioch Amphitheater Friday, July 23, Saturday, July 24 and Sunday, July 25. All performances are outdoors and free of cost.

Those attending are invited to bring a picnic basket an hour and a half before Hamlet begins to enjoy a free art and music festival. Hamlet performances begin at 7 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and at 3 p.m. on Sunday.

See locally produced film

A showing of A Portrait of Yellow Springs, Through the Eyes of Our Elders, produced by villager Patti Dallas, will be showing at the Little Art Theatre on Saturday, July 24, 4 p.m. The film touches on such subjects as Arthur Morgan, Antioch and civil rights, among others. Donations will be accepted to help support the theater, and copies of the film will be available for purchase.

Glen Helen fundraiser dinner—

Finally, a use for honeysuckle

By Lauren Heaton

When the barred owl sings its inquisitive call "whoo cooks for you?" this weekend, the folks at Glen Helen will have an answer. At a long dinner table at the Raptor Center on Sunday, July 18, area diners in support of the Glen will sit down to enjoy a meal whose origins are both known and local with the area chefs and farmers who grew and prepared the food.

While tickets to the Glen's first sustainable food fundraiser for the Glen's Raptor Center will likely be sold out, villagers have another way to get involved. Local engineer and builder Dennis Moore handcrafted three chairs from the spindly wood of the invasive honeysuckle during the most recent clearing event in the Glen. The chairs, built with mortise and tenon joinery, will be auctioned off at 6 p.m. on Sunday evening, and preregistered callers from the outside are welcome to participate.

The auction will begin at $100, and participants who want a chance to get one of the chairs should preregister online at www.whoocooksforyou.org/ or by calling Liz Schneiders at 769-1902. A volunteer at the dinner on Sunday will represent outside participants by cell phone during the live auction. The chairs have already stirred interest on the Glen's Facebook page, according to the Glen's volunteer coordinator Jenny Montgomery, who hopes that the auction can extend the experience of the event beyond the reach of this year's maximum dining capacity of 50 guests.

Moore, a lifelong woodworker, began building honeysuckle chairs about five years ago. He helped Glen Trail Manager George Bieri to harvest the wood from areas near the Glen Helen Building and the Outdoor Education Center and then used the natural trunks for the frame of the chairs, splitting only the wood for the seats, and spending about 30 hours total on each chair. The wood is untreated but is as unpopular with insects as it is with land stewards, and is likely to last well beyond the five-year-old chair that Moore uses to demonstrate what can be done with the rejected honeysuckle brush, he said.

The Glen hopes to raise about $10,000 from the fundraising event from ticket sales, auction proceeds and private sponsorships, Glen Helen Ecology Institute Director Nick Boutis said this week. The funds will help support the Raptor Center's $50,000 annual operating expenses, and could become an annual event.

On July 6 a Dayton Street resident reported that a window was broken at their residence sometime overnight.

On July 6, an East Limestone Street resident reported an unruly juvenile.

On July 6 a Dayton Street resident reported that her purse and contents were stolen while at the Dayton Street Gulch the previous night.

On July 6, an Import House employee called to report he was holding two juvenile shoplifters. The police spoke with the two juveniles in custody and turned them over to their parents.

On July 6, a peace officer was requested at a home on West Whiteman Street.

At 9:30 p.m. on July 6, police found suspicious persons on Corry Street and issued the three subjects a verbal warning for trespassing.

On Wednesday, July 7, a Suncrest Drive resident called to report a hit and run in front of her residence the previous day.

On July 7, a West South College Street resident accidentally called 911 when his cat walked across the phone and hit the 911 access button.

On July 7 at 11:45 p.m., Amanda Flannery, Enon, and Joshua Campbell, Enon, were cited in Ellis Park for drug abuse. Flannery knowingly had a white plastic bag containing a green leafy substance inside (marijuana) and Campbell had multicolored glass pipes with burnt marijuana residue, one smoked marijuana joint and a plastic bag with green leafy residue located inside his vehicle. He was additionally cited for drug paraphernalia.

On July 7 at around 7 a.m., Stephen Ali, Yellow Springs, was stopped at Livermore and East North College streets for a turn signal violation, and was cited with four counts a suspended driver's license.

On July 7 at 1:30 a.m., Michael C. Johnson, Xenia, was stopped at Xenia and Kahoe Drive for speeding and cited for a operator's license violation.

On Thursday, July 8, at 2:30 a.m., a Xenia Avenue resident reported that his neighbor was possibly missing. Police later found the man home safe and sound.

On July 8 at 4 a.m. an officer was doing a Gaunt Park pool check and observed six to seven juveniles running around the interior of the fence and swimming in the pool. The perpetrators ran from the scene and left behind bikes, clothing, a cell phone, a bottle of pills, several cans of malt liquor energy drinks and an empty bottle of alcohol. The back gate was observed to be open and is now locked and secure. Police spoke with the mother of one of the suspects, a 14-yearold who left behind her cell phone. Police continue to investigate the incident.

On July 8 at noon, Pass It On Kids to report a missing money box.

On July 8, a West Limestone Street resident reported a burglary at her residence.

On July 8 at 10 p.m., a Spillan Road resident reported an abandoned bike. Police took custody of the bike and later returned it to the owner.

APPROXIMATELY 1040 square feet. Master suite downstairs with walk-in closet; open kitchen with island having outdoor view. Very large upper loft with attached ¾ bath, plus great light and farm view. Fully carpeted (except kitchen and baths). All new "Energy Saver" electric appliances; water softener; separate laundry space; ceiling fans throughout. Outdoor deck, outdoor storage. Street frontage; shared driveway.

Neighborhood surrounded by a walkway, in a cul de sac ending at farmland. 10 homes planned, none like any other. All homes with small lots. Four homes have been built with two occupied to date. One-fourth of total neighborhood acreage devoted to common green space, and a common lot provides guest parking.

This new sale is offered exclusively to buyers earning within the Greene County median annual income geared to family size — i.e. $61,687 for a family of four, the smaller the family the lower the median income, reducing to an income of $43,187 for one person. Potential buyers must present last year's summary page of their IRS tax report.

In exchange for reduced purchase price, buyer's resale profit will be limited for ten years. Each year with no sale will permit more of a profit in the next year. Mutually signed agreement between buyer and seller comes in second to any mortgage. First time home-buyers may still be able to receive Greene County help for down payment.

YSHS golf begins

Practices for the upcoming Yellow Springs High School golf season begin on Monday, Aug. 2, with matches beginning 10 days later. Those interested in being on the team are asked to contact Varsity Golf Coach Mike Reichert to be part of the season's roster.

In order to be eligible for the season, YSHS students intending to play varsity golf this season must have a new physical performed, and they must complete and submit the proper OHSAA medical forms to Coach Reichert no later than the first practice on Aug. 2. OHSAA medical forms are available at the board office.

Physicals may be obtained privately and are also scheduled for Thursday, July 29, at Greene Memorial Hospital on the ground floor of the Vera Schneider Building (north entrance of the hospital). The physicals will be held from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. The cost is $20, and proceeds will go to the Yellow Springs Athletic Department.

Contact Coach Reichert by phone, 767-1073, or e-mail, yshsgolf@hotmail.com. Forms can be dropped off at 1016 State Route 343, at the northeast corner of U.S. 68 and State Route 343.

Running champs start camp

By Lauren Heaton

Running may be one of the most natural, intuitive sports there is, but doing it well isn't as easy as it seems. Two recent Yellow Springs High School graduates, Sam Borchers and Evan Firestone, learned a lot about distance running before going on to win state and national championships in their track and cross country events. They are returning to the village next week to pass on their skills to young hopefuls aiming to improve on their natural abilities.

The Miami Valley Trail Life Distance Running Camp is a one-week intensive training experience for runners in grades seven through 12. The residential camp is based on the Antioch College campus, where participants will reside, eat their meals, attend lectures and leave for their daily regimen of runs throughout the village and in Glen Helen and John Bryan State Park.

Borchers and Firestone conceived of the camp based on Borchers' experience coaching at a youth running camp the past two summers at Penn State, where he is heading into his senior year as a member of the track and cross country teams. Borchers and Firestone, who is a senior at Wright State University, set the Division III state record in the two-mile relay in 2007 with teammates Andy Peters and Alexis Onfroy. Borchers later earned recognition as the top high school miler in the country and last year became one of the top 15 collegiate runners in the country in the 800 and posted a Big Ten championship victory in the 1500-meters.

The organizers' reputations precede them, and with a history of working well together to attain their goals, Borchers, Firestone and Peters, along with a handful of their collegiate friends, will run the camp, cook the meals, give the lectures and pass on their knowledge and experience to help shape future athletes.

"I'm excited because a lot of kids ask me questions about things like what to eat and how to practice, and I have to tell them, 'No, you can't eat that way' and 'No, you can't double your mileage in a week," Borchers said. Now he gets a chance to tell a group of aspiring runners all together what they can do to improve their performance and reach for their goals.

Camp leaders plan a daily schedule that includes an early morning "shake-out" run and stretches before breakfast in the cafeteria, followed by a lecture on everything from nutrition to motivation and goal setting. The morning and evening track sessions could include runs along the Glen's 25 miles of nature trails or John Bryan State Park's variable terrain, and some will be in conjunction with a practice of the Miami Valley Track Club, led by Vince Peters, who is a long-time YSHS cross country and track coach, a collegiate NAIA coach and the USATF chairman and USA Olympic Trials committee member.

The camp runs from Monday, July 19, through Thursday, July 22, and costs $190-$250 per person. With 20 male and female athletes signed up so far from the Dayton area and some from Pennsylvania, Borchers needs at least 30 to start breaking even on the costs for food and facility rental, he said this week. And he especially hopes to get local runners to sign up for the experience as well.

Borchers is eager to get this first year trial off the ground so that he can continue to improve the model in the future. And he is particularly enthusiastic about passing on the powerful experience of working with a team to achieve. A team doesn't win with just one great runner, but rather relies on the individual strengths of all of its runners who motivate each other and can earn not just first place but also crucial second, third, and fourth place positions to win together, Borchers said. The leaders of that team need skills to recruit, motivate and strategize in order to achieve success, he said.

"Leaders know how to build up a team, and I'm hoping to use this camp to build leaders," he said.

For registration and other camp information, go to www.miamivalleytrackclub. org/XC_Camp/Information.html or call Sam Borchers at 689-2459.

Twins on top in Major League

By Tim Sherwood

Indians push to win Minors

In the Minor League last week, the Indians pushed their record to 8-0 with a pair of wins to keep their spot at the top going into the final week of play. The Indians pounded out 24 hits in their first win of the week, an 18-8 defeat of the Dragons on Wednesday, July 7. Hayden Orme, Parker Bleything, and Tony Marinelli all scored three runs, with Dimitri Wallace, Brandon Pollock and Tristan Campbell adding a pair of runs each. David Walker, Eric Romohr, Jackson Bleything and Sam Lewis all scored once. Charlotte Snare led the Dragons, scoring with a pair of runs, with Jeff Crawford, Ben Pontius, Sean Adams, Grant Arnold, Sam Bloom and Lucas Sansom all adding a run.

The Indians' second victory, a 12-5 win over the third-place Pirates, came Saturday, July 10, in a rain-delayed game. Two runs were scored each by Orme, Campbell, Fisher Lewis and Marinelli, with Romohr, Walker, Jackson Burmester and brothers Parker and Jackson Bleything each adding a run. Meanwhile Caden Johnson of the Pirates scored twice, while Aamil Wagner, Joseph Minde-Berman and Maleah Gillsingle run scored

The final regular season game will be this Friday, July 16, at 7 p.m., when the Reds take on the Indians. The Reds remain in second place at 5–3, with the Pirates in third at 4–4, followed by the 0–8 Dragons.

The post-season tournament starts Saturday, with the Indians and Dragons playing at 10 a.m., followed by the Reds and Pirates at 11:45. The winners of each game will then face off for the championship under the Gaunt Park lights on Saturday evening at 7 p.m.

Twins have a hold on Majors

The Major League's Twins continue to be the team to beat. They added three more wins last week to strengthen their hold atop the standings at 7–0. The first win of the week was the team's closest one yet, squeaking by the Athletics 3–2 on Wednesday, July 7. Each team scored a pair of runs in the second, from Bryce White and Cameron Haught for the Twins and Jonathon Elam and Grant Reigelsperger for the A's. Both teams' defense then held the other scoreless until the bottom of the ninth when Joe Thorpe singled and crossed the plate for the winning run on Aaron Harshaw's hard hit RBI triple.

Earlier in the week, the A's were on the winning side of a late rally when they downed the Royals 12-10. Tied at 10 going into the final frame, the A's tough pitching and defense retired the inning's three Royals batters in order. Then in the bottom of the ninth with two outs and Isaiah Taylor on base, the A's Ian Chick smashed a walkoff home run, his second of the contest, to seal the win. Eric Lawhorn led the Royals with three runs scored, followed by Sam Crawford and Joe Plummer with two each and single runs from Adam Green, Jacob Whetsel and Nathan Hardman.

The Twins notched their second win of the week by outlasting the Royals 7-2 on Saturday, July 11. They jumped out to an early 4-0 first inning lead, and Jared Scarfpin went on to lead the Twins with three runs scored off two walks and a double, followed by Joe Thorpe's pair of singles that led to two runs. The Royals Eric Lawhorn and Nathan Miller scored once each.

The week's third victory by the Twins came on Sunday, July 12, with a 10-0 shutout of the Athletics. J.T. Clark and Liam Weigand each scored a pair of runs.

The Twins remain first at 7-0, followed by the Royals at 2-5 and the A's at 2-6. Major League games are played on Saturdays at 10:30 a.m., Sundays at 5 p.m. and Wednesdays at 7 p.m. at Gaunt Park.

Sea Dogs fry Fighting Fish

By Eli Hurwitz

The Yellow Springs Sea Dogs swam strongly against the Forest Ridge Fighting Fish. It was easy to see the Sea Dog teamwork in the meet's relay events; the Sea Dogs won 11 of the 16 that they swam. Aman Ngqakayi not only won three races in his age group, but he also swam with the 15and-over medley relay team in their winning race. Brothers matched sisters at this meet, as Emma Reed and Youssef Reed, Evalynn Orme and Theon Orme all brought home five ribbons apiece for different events. Amélie Maruyama continued her winning streak in the girls six-and-under events, winning two first-place ribbons. Sam Lewis quickly swam to a freestyle victory in the boys six-and-under race. Now that we are in the middle of the season, the swimmers are getting faster at all of their events. Zoey McKinley swam her 200-meter individual medley 10 seconds faster than her best time. Fatou Reed, who swam her first event two weeks ago, has sped her 25-meter freestyle swim 10 seconds faster. At the end of the meet, our young villagers swam so fast the sun was still shining on them at the end of a wonderful meet.

Volleyball clinic to start

The Yellow Springs schools will host a morning girls volleyball clinic July 19-23 from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the Yellow Springs High School gym. The clinic is for area girls entering the sixth, seventh or eighth grade next fall and living in Yellow Springs or attending Yellow Springs schools. Students will learn basic skills and/or improve their play. There is no charge, however a registration form must be completed on or before July 19 to attend. For more details or the registration form go to www.ysviewpoint.com or contact Coach Parker 767-1975.

Football begins soon

YSHS football practice will begin Wednesday, August 4, 5-7 p.m. Those interested in playing should call coach Craig McCann at 532-5111. Physicals will need to be completed by that time, and will be offered on Thursday, July 29, 6-8 p.m. at Greene Memorial Hospital.
